Upcoming Christmas market in Potton

THE SCOOP

MABLE HASTINGS

While you may find yourself wincing at the mention of an upcoming Christmas Market while we're basking in the last few sunny days of fall, for those wanting to participate in the market, now is the time to reserve a table. If last year's Sale was any indication then this year the spaces available will fill up quickly. Potton is rich in talent and many are eager to proudly display their wares.

This year Jeanette Bellefeuille and her granddaughter, Sarah are working their magic in organizing this annual sale on Dec. 3 and 4 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Mansonville Catholic Church basement 324 Rue Principale. Tables are available to rent and those interested can contact Sarah at: sarah-ann95@hotmail.ca

This Christmas sale offers the public the opportunity to do their Christmas shopping locally while supporting local craft persons and small businesses. You are far likelier to find a unique gift for that special someone on your list at a sale like this than by shopping at a large department store. In past years numerous vendors and diverse articles were available including delicious homemade treats and much more...

There is an immediate injection of holiday spirit at a local Christmas sale. Music and laughter fill the air as locals visit the tables, conversing with merchants and selecting something unique for that special someone. From stocking stuffers to wool stockings, this event is worth a stop.

In the past vendors selling clothing items including scarves, mittens, socks, shawls, t-shirt's...paintings, candles, wood working, preserves... the list goes regarding the treasures that can be found. So, while we have Halloween to get through, it's important to sign up now if you are a vendor and wish to sell your creations. For those of us preferring to shop, take this opportunity to write the date on your calendar.

After the Monster Mash ends, we will start Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree and December will arrive faster than we might think!
